CLERK OF COURT
JOEY D. MOYA, ESQ.

July 30, 2020

Fellow New Mexicans,

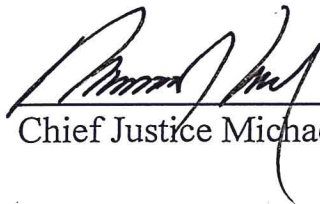

As you walk into the courtroom at the New Mexico Supreme Court, you are greeted with a statement of the Court's guiding principle. Above the heads of the justices, indelibly carved into wood are the words, "Dedicated to the Administration of Equal Justice Under Law." Workers engraved these words into the backdrop of the Court's dais in 1937. Since then, scores of legal advocates, government officials, and members of the public have stood before the Court, under those words, and asked for equal treatment under the law. They put their trust in our adherence to this bedrock tenet of democracy.

This trust—that each New Mexican will be treated fairly under the laws of this state—is imperative to the work of the courts. Without it, the justice system erodes and crumbles. But we cannot take your trust for granted. We must eliminate the deleterious effects of the poisons of prejudice, bias and racism. We must serve all persons equally, regardless of race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, income, language, ability, or education.

To achieve this goal, the judiciary will engage in a critical examination of the institution. We need to acknowledge our shortcomings and recognize our conscious and unconscious biases. This reflection is the first step to lasting change. But actions speak louder than words.

To that end, the New Mexico Supreme Court announces the establishment of the Commission on Equity and Justice. The specific work of this Commission will be developed in the coming days. It will include analysis of data, education for judges and court staff regarding implicit bias, the creation and improvement of court policies relating to diversity and inclusion, and a commitment to nominate more diverse individuals to serve on the bench. This Commission will also work collaboratively with other Supreme Court Commissions and justice partners.

Let our actions today reinforce our commitment to the words we hold sacred. The New Mexico Judiciary is firmly dedicated to the administration of equal justice under the law.
